Procedure	Activity One: Introduction – Benchmark Lesson (15-20 minutes) 1.)Facilitator will show teachers (on the smartboard) a sample lesson plan by going to the main Library of Congress Page/the Education Link/Teachers/Classroom Materials/Lesson Plans and will then show in detail the Recreation Yesterday and Today Lesson Plan as this topic will appeal to many teachers Overview/Preparation/Procedure/Evaluation  http://www.loc.gov/teachers/classroommaterials/lessons/recreation/ 2.) Teachers will then be given time (30 minutes) to explore the lesson plan page and select a specific lesson (in their discipline or that is of interest to them)  http://www.loc.gov/teachers/classroommaterials/lessons Facilitator will walk around the room answering questions and pointing out specific features (such as the primary source analysis tool handouts and the common core standards by grade for example). 3.) Facilitator will then show some advanced google search tips (using Boolean Operators, the advanced screen, including the site:search strategy) and will demonstrate locating specific items using those strategies. Then, looking at a sample resource and its bibliographic record, teachers will be guided in developing keywords. This will be especially helpful as teachers look for additional primary sources in the various Library of Congress Collections. A resource table with printouts will be available including How-to sheets and information on using the bibliographic record, and the FAQ page for searching American Memory. (15 minutes) Break: refreshments Activity Two: 1.) Teachers will be encouraged to work in small groups(cross-discipline, co-teach or teachers of the same course) to develop a google presentation that they can eventually use with students but those who prefer to may also work alone. Teachers will create 4-6 slides that include primary source documents of different types (textual documents, maps, photographs, recordings, video, sheet music, art and drawings, poetry, etc.) relevant to their curriculum or an area of interest. Facilitator will circulate to help teachers navigate the site and find appropriate sources. Co-teachers will be encouraged to work together to create differentiated lessons. A mini-lesson for Special Education Teachers will show America’s Story and how this might be used to differentiate lessons. The program rewordify.com can be used to simplify more complex text. (30-45 minutes) 2.) In small groups (or pairs) the teachers will share their slides with the other teachers in the group who will (in groups or pairs) fill out a primary source analysis tool form for each slide. Each pair will critique each other’s presentation, paying close attention to how different types of media will appeal to different learning styles and how the lesson was differentiated or could be further differentiated. (30-40 minutes) 3.) A discussion moderated by the facilitator will include a discussion of how this activity could be a model for a student centered research activity based on the primary sources and how lessons can be differentiated or modified (both for struggling readers and/or ESOL students). (15 minutes) 4.) A sample rubric for student created slideshows (in google presentations or
